2. Meeting Discussion

Demonstration of current project progress:

- The project name is hyperlink and it is clickable by the users. The user will direct to a new page to indicate which GitHub project has been randomly selected.
- The extracted URL is hyperlink and it is clickable by the users. The user will get to view which extracted URLs from the README file below the following table. The project ID will be shown too.
- The sequential number of each project selected. Users will know how many number of README within the GitHub project is selected.

Requirements given by the client:

- Present the result in dynamic form by using the AJAX during the fetching process. Once the program successfully fetched a README file, it will show that every fetched result immediately instead of showing all the result at once for the users.
- The client suggested that we can produce our own test plan and let our partner to test our developed program.
- The aggregated result of the section heading can be sorted.

The client has explained how the test plan should be look like. He has described to us how the JUnit actually works.
